HOMEcoming OCTOBER 9, 1971

PARENTS' WEEKEND OCTOBER 16, 1971

BACCALAUREATE

Using "The King Is Dead! Long Live the King!" as his sermon theme, President Hutson challenged the 1971 graduates to help solve some of the problems of society. Recalling the philosophy of the late theologian Reinhold Niebuhr, Dr. Hutson said, "It is easy to verbalize, to generalize in words such as humanity, concern, care, love, and treat people as persons, but it is frightfully difficult to determine what these mean for personal decisions, fearful to try to implement them at the societal, national, and international levels." Dr. Hutson cited from the inaugural address of Dr. Silber, the new president of Boston University. "The time factor has disappeared from the family. No longer is one surrounded at critical times by more than one generation of the critically concerned. No generation gap can be healed if the generations never have reason to live together in a community of concern."

AT LEFT—Because of uncertain weather conditions commencement exercises were held indoors at Loydsack High School.

AT RIGHT—Departing from the traditional exercises, this year there was no commencement speaker and no awards of honorary degrees. Instead, two fathers participated in the ceremony. From left, Rev. Harold T. Brinton, of The United Methodist Board of Missions of New York City, who gave the invocation, his son Thomas L. Brinton, 1970-71 president of Student Government Association, Andrew A. Bucke, 1971 Chautau and recipient of the Bishop Perry Eshelam Prize, Rev. D. Perry Bucke, Pastor of the Ashbury United Methodist Church, York, who gave the benediction.

"The King Is Dead! Long Live the King! This was the ancient word when the world went on at the changing of the generations," Dr. Hutson said in conclusion. "Your task, Class of 1971, and ours, is to find the threads of continuity that will hold our culture and our lives together in a pattern of time. We of the classes of the thirties wrestled with some tough problems. We didn't solve many of the problems of humanity. Your college hopes that you will do better."

COMMENCEMENT

Diplomas were awarded to 270 seniors during the 123rd Annual Commencement on Sunday, June 6. In lieu of a commencement speaker, President Hutson spoke briefly to the graduates. "This is a day of despair, it is a time of great hope. This is a year when people know more than at any time in history, it is a time when more basic human problems threaten to overwhelm us than ever before. This is a year when many jobs need desperately to be done, it is a time when fewer jobs are available than at any time within the memory of this college generation."

"Welcome to the fellowship of educated men! Those of us from the classes of the thirties and forties can share your feelings of economic frustration. We had trouble getting a job, too. . . . Most of all we wish for you that quality of character which enables a person to persist in looking for humane solutions, to work unceasingly at untangling the good from the bad in life's situations and to affirm life rather than to grow bitter."

OUTSTANDING ALUMINUS AWARD

Presented To

VICTOR BLAKE HANN

By

THE LYCOMING COLLEGE
ALUMNI ASSOCIATION

June 5, 1971

You were born in 1902 in Clearfield, Pennsylvania, to parents of German, English, and Scotch-Irish descent. You were the oldest of five children; the other four were girls. As a child, you battled an asthmatic condition which forced you to start school a year late and necessitated your being absent much of the time in those early grades.

In 1917, when your family moved from Clearfield to Williamsport, you were 15 years of age, and you found employment at the United States Rubber Company. It was wartime and more than once, you put in seventy-two hours of work at your factory machine.

You still desired to complete your education, and after four years in the factory, and with the financial affairs at home in better condition, you decided to go back to school and the Williamsport Dickinson Seminary was the place you chose. You completed your work here with the Class of 1924 and continued at Dickinson College in Carlisle where you graduated in 1928. Having served student pastorates during college, upon graduation, you were assigned to New Bloomfield. You later served pastorates in Martinsburg, Harrisburg, Watsontown, and Lewistown.

In 1928 you married the former Muriel Flexer who has shared the concerns and joys of your work ever since. Your marriage was blessed with a daughter, Victoria Kathryn, and you now boast one grandchild.

You have kept close ties with your alma maters and have been a member of the Executive Board of the Lycoming College Alumni Association and have served as its president.

In 1942 you became the superintendent of the Methodist Home for Children at Mechanicsburg, Pennsylvania. You are now retiring from that position, but in those twenty-nine years, you have made a significant record, not only evidenced in the beauty of the buildings and grounds, but even more in the lives of over 300 children who have come under your care and guidance.

In awarding you the Honorary Doctor of Humanities Degree from Lycoming College in 1956, President Wertz stated:

"You have been a father to the fatherless. In you love has come alive for so many who have known little of love. . . . You have taught boys and girls to love life and have given them a faith by which to live. For this ministry there is no greater reward nor deeper satisfaction than the smile of a child or a song which you have put on his lips."

Many well deserved honors have come your way over the years, and the Executive Board of the Alumni Association has taken action to add to these by naming you the recipient of the "Outstanding Alumnus Award for 1971" and, as a tangible evidence, present to you this Lycoming College Rocker.

HONORS DAY

Presentation of awards for academic excellence and athletic achievement and dedication of the yearbook to DR. FRANCES K. SKEATH, professor of mathematics and chairman of the department, were features of the 23rd Annual Honors Day ceremonies held on May 11

ROBERT O. BALDI, of Philadelphia, president of the senior class, introduced the program and transferred the class mantle—symbol of responsibility—to THOMAS SCHIMMEL, of Tonawanda, New York, who is next year's senior class president. The senior president also presented a cash gift on behalf of the seniors to the college to be used to purchase equipment and supplies for the audio-visual aids department

Lycorning's most coveted honor, the Chieftain Award, went to ANDREW A. BUCKE, of York. "The senior who, in the opinion of the students and faculty, has contributed the most to Lycorning through support of school activities, who has a pleasing personality, and the ability to get along with his co-workers, who has evidenced a good moral code, and whose academic rank is in the upper half of his class."

President Hutton presented the Chieftain Award to Andy. The citation, in addition to generally stating the reason for selection to the top award, specifically enumerated the many services Andy had performed during his four years at Lycorning

Andy, in acknowledging the award, paid tribute to a fellow senior, THOMAS L. BRUNTON, who he said was equally deserving to be named Chieftain for his devoted service to Lycorning and its students. Tom is retiring president of the Student Government Association and a former resident of Williamsport. He now resides in Midland Park, New Jersey.

GAIL H. MILLER, editor of the Arrow, read the statement dedicating the yearbook to Dr. Skeath. The citation said, "It has been said that to give of oneself is to truly give. This ability to give unselfishly is a rare and special kind of giving. The class of 1971 wishes to honor a member of our faculty who exhibits just these characteristics. She is a person intimately concerned with her students, willing to offer her time and energy, for their benefit. Her office is always a center of activity, a point of strength for students and faculty alike. She has spent endless hours making plans and arrangements for the graduation exercises each year.

"In short, she is a person whose 'gifts' to Lycorning may be considered intangible. However, the results have created strong feelings of appreciation and respect that perhaps are seldom expressed in a formal or verbal manner. Therefore, we, the Class of 1971, dedicate the Arrow to DR. FRANCES K. SKEATH. This is our humble offering for all that you have given so freely of yourself, a gift that cannot be measured."

Other student awards included the A. W. S. Woman of the Year award to NANCY L. FIRESINE, of Tunkhannock. WILLIAM O. OLSEN—Homer City, was the recipient of the Tomahawk Award, given to the outstanding senior athlete, and SOZANNE M. HOHL—Shillington, received the Pocahontas Award as the outstanding senior girl athlete. BEVERLY A. KELLER—Newmanstown, was given the Women's Athletic Association Award for the outstanding girl athlete of the year. The W. A. A. 100-point Award was shared by DAISY JIMENEZ, of New York City; JENNIFER P. WEST, of Washington, D. C.; NANCY E. TARASCHI, of Haddon Heights, New Jersey, and MISS KELLER. MISS HOHL also presented a gift to Mrs. Thomas E. Vargo and Mrs. Ronald L. Miller, physical education instructors, for their assistance to the Women's Athletic Association program.

Lambda Chi Alpha's Freshman Scholarship Award, which is given to the freshman student with the highest average, was shared by KEITH S. WILLIAMS, of Bloomfield, N. J., and SHARON E. FOSTER, of Sayre.

DAVID M. FARBELI, of Bloomfield, Connecticut, received the Freshman Chemistry Achievement Award

Alpha Sigma Phi's Harry Schlee Award was presented to ROBERT D. JONES, of Kingston, and the Kappa Delta Rho Papoose Award went to RICHARD G. CHIEDO, of River Vale, New Jersey

The Wall Street Journal Business Award went to KING E. ADKINS, of LaPlata, Maryland. The Business Administration Scholastic Award was presented to DIANNE S. TOWNSEND, of Shavertown, and the Williamsport Civic Choir Award went to CHRISTOPHER B. ASKIN, of Williamsville, New York

IRUSKA—A society organized in 1951 to recognize "Warriors who win high honors" No more than seven juniors are selected annually for membership. Their academic rank must be in the upper half of their class, they must be active in extracurricular activities, and they should best represent the spirit of campus leadership at Lycorning College

CAMPUS NOTES

STEVEN J. STOUT, a junior chemistry major, has been awarded two research grants for independent study this summer and fall. Starting in June, Steve will participate in a ten-week National Science Foundation Undergraduate Research Program at Boston University doing independent research.

In September, he will go to Chicago to enroll in the Undergraduate Honors Research Program at Argonne Center for Educational Affairs where he will conduct a project involving synthesizing and measuring photoabsorption and photoionization cross sections of some molecules important in photochemical smog. Dr. James Person, of Argonne's Radiological Physics Division, will be Steve's research supervisor.

The unique research and development facilities in many basic and applied science areas and the scientific staff of over 1,000 make Argonne National Laboratory an excellent major teaching and research installation of the United States Atomic Energy Commission. Steve will spend at least one-half time using the facilities for research and the remainder will be devoted to research supportive activities such as lectures, seminars, and related laboratory functions. He will return to Lycoming next spring to complete his degree requirements.

All three senior anthropology majors (FAYE L. STOCUM—Jersey Shore, JOHN L. CARROLL—Baltimore, Maryland, and DAVID R. WEBB—Abington) have been admitted to graduate studies in anthropology despite increased competition for limited space. Nationwide less than half of the applicants are accepted.

Faye will attend the University of Toronto which has the largest and one of the best anthropology departments in Canada. John and David have been admitted to Wake Forest University. The Winston-Salem institution is noted for its Moravian archives which offer both men abundant material for a master's thesis in social anthropology.

WILLIAM A. TURNBAUGH, of Williamsport, and T. STEPHEN TURNBULL, of Cherry Hill, New Jersey, are two 1970 Lyco graduates doing graduate work in anthropology—Bill on a Woodrow Wilson Fellowship in prehistoric archeology at Harvard and Steve on a scholarship at the University of Virginia.

In early May CHARLES R. SPRINGER, a junior from Lock Haven, and Miss STOCUM attended the annual spring meeting of the Society for Pennsylvania Archeology held at Waynesburg College.

AUTHORITY IN EDUCATION—a three-day campus-wide colloquium titled "Everything You've Always Wanted To Know About Authority In Education (But Were Afraid To Ask)" was sponsored May 5 to 7 by the education and philosophy departments and planned by FORREST E. KEESBURY, assistant professor of education, DR. ROBERT C. SCHULTZ, assistant professor of philosophy, and students WILLIAM BOWLER, DAVID MARCELLO, DONNA BROWNE, CLARITA KRALL, and LINETTE EDEN.

On Wednesday afternoon a roundtable discussion on "Student Freedom—Classroom Authority" was conducted by OWEN F. HERRING, assistant professor of philosophy, DR. ROBERT W. RABOLD, professor of economics, EMILY R. JENSEN, assistant professor of English, and students DONNA BROWNE and ALBERT FLORA. In the evening the controversial, prize-winning movie "High School" was shown and discussed.

Three workshops were conducted by Ormond Smythe, project director for Philadelphia University Without Walls, on "The Totalitarian Classroom Game" which stressed the dominant attitudes that govern teacher-student transactions in classrooms.

Dr. James W. Dickoff and Dr. Patricia A. James, associate professors of philosophy at Kent State University and husband and wife, conducted a dialog on "Trust-Busting: Beyond Therapy To Anti-Trust Laws For The Classroom" on Thursday evening.

On Friday morning the three off-campus speakers discussed "Beyond Summerhill" and the attitudes towards Neill's Summerhill and humaneness in the public schools. The colloquium concluded Friday evening with a paper on "Seduction in the Classroom: Tactics and Goal" by professors James and Dickoff.

A $5,000 GRANT from W. K. Kellogg Foundation was received in May. One of nearly 300 awards from the foundation's College Resources for Environmental Studies Program to encourage the nation's small, private liberal arts colleges to initiate or strengthen programs of environmental studies.

A student-faculty selection committee has been named to supervise the grant: Chairman—DR. K. BRUCE SHERBINE, assistant professor of biology; DR. ROBERT W. RABOLD, professor of economics; DR. JACK S. MCCRARY, professor of sociology and anthropology; DR. DAVID A. FRANZ, assistant professor of chemistry; DR. JAMES R. JOSE, professor of political science and dean of the college; IRA DOMSKY and MELANIE BOND, sophomore biology majors; and KEITH WILLIAMS, a freshman. The committee will meet at least twice a semester with their major responsibility to acquire source materials related to environmental studies for students of all disciplines. The diverse background of the committee members is expected to assure a well-balanced selection of books, periodicals, and audio-visual aids.

WENRICH H. GREEN, assistant professor of biology, was elected first vice president of the Pennsylvania Biologists Association at its first annual meeting in April at the Milton S. Hershey Medical Center. A meeting of the organization's board was held at Lycoming in May.

DR. JAMES R. JOSE, dean of the college, appeared on the WTPA Channel 27 Harrisburg television program "From Where I Sit" on Sunday, May 16. The topic discussed with other Pennsylvania educators was the College Level Examination Program. CLEP was recently adopted at Lycoming.

GAIL MILLER, senior mathematics major, conducted a two-day seminar at Williamsport High School on innovative and experimental math courses for high school students. Subject matter for the seminar was drawn from studies courses taken by Mrs. Miller. Her project was to find material not normally presented at high school level and develop it for presentation to secondary school students. Her first presentation was on logic with a stress on syllogisms; the second program was based on a studies course in lattice theory. Gail's work in the studies courses will be the basis of a new course, "Concepts of Mathematics in the Secondary Curriculum," to be offered next fall.

DR. MAURICE A. MOOK, professor of anthropology, has been chosen for inclusion in the eighth edition of the Dictionary of International Biography because of his "important research in the sociology of sectarian and folk societies". This "Biographical Record of Contemporary Achievement", edited and published in London, is firmly established in the world of scholarship as a major work of biographical reference in over 120 countries. Dr. Mook's biography also is included in current editions of American Men of Science and Who's Who In The East.

Dr. Mook's review of James A. Warner's book The Quiet Land of the Old Order Amish of Lancaster County appeared in the April 15 issue of "Friends Journal". That same month Dr. and Mrs. Mook attended the first seminar devoted to Irish Arts and Crafts ever held in the United States. Two well-known art historians from Ireland, along with several American-Irish specialists, served on the faculty of the seminar held at Pennsbury Manor.

ROGER SHIPLEY, assistant professor of art, was awarded a special juror's mention at the Cleveland Museum of Art's 52nd Annual May Show for a piece of sculpture. He had won the same award at the 1969 show. Roger had two of his works in Cleveland's Park Synagogue Art Festival show and sale. One of his sculptures was shown in "Transparent and Translucent Art", an invitational show in St. Petersburg and Jackson, Florida. He will enter a work in a juried show in Harrisburg—"Pennsylvania 71".

JAMES E. CHRONISTER, a junior physics major, participated in the annual meeting of the Central Pennsylvania Section of the American Association of Physics Teachers held at Dickinson College in April. He explained how he organized and conducted "College Physics Quiz—Bowl of Fun" for a meeting of the Society of Physics Students of Lycoming College.

ROBERT P. HAWLEY '71, won first place in the oratorical contest at the annual Circle K convention held in April at Pittsburgh. Bob has been lieutenant-governor of Division 4 of Pennsylvania District, Circle K International during the last year.

THE ANNUAL FACULTY-TRUSTEE-ASSOCIATES DINNER was held April 22 and had Paul J. Franz, Jr., vice president for development and public relations at Lehigh University, as guest speaker. The Lycoming Associates, a group comprised of civic, industrial, and municipal leaders plus parents and alumni, were included in the affair for the first time. Participants in the program included: FRED A. PENNINGTON, chairman of the board of trustees, DR. HAROLD H. HUTSON, and trustees W. RUSSELL ZACHARIAS and REV. DONALD H. TREESE.

NOTED AMERICAN COMPOSER-CRITIC-AUTHOR Virgil Thomson spent Wednesday, April 28 on campus. # STUDENTS WALK FOR THE HUNGRY

Thirty-five Lycoming College students walked with nearly 700 youth and adults of Lycoming County in the April 17th "Walk For The Hungry" sponsored by CROP, which is the Community Hunger Appeal of Church World Service.

Our students asked other students, faculty, parents, and friends to sponsor them on their ten-mile walk from Newberry through Montoursville. The entire event netted $13,000 for hunger relief around the world, and our Lycoming students contributed nearly $900.00 of that amount. We are proud of our students, their concern for others, and their willingness to do something about it.

AT RIGHT—Our students mixed through the line of walkers, encouraged others to finish the ten-mile course

CLASS OF 1971 PLEDGES

The Class of 1971 conducted a lively campaign during the last month of school to solicit five-year pledges to The Lycoming College Fund. This is the fourth consecutive year for the "Senior Pledging Program." Steve Hogan, an art major from Cherry Hill, New Jersey, was the chairman, and he enlisted the help of twenty-six captains and callers to speak personally with each class member about his pledge.

They got results! Thirty-seven percent of the class pledged and 30% asked to be contacted later in the year after they were settled in a job. The 106 seniors who signed cards, pledged $973.00 per year for a total pledge of $4,865.00 over a five-year period.

This vote of confidence in their alma mater is of great encouragement to everyone at the college and speaks highly of the dedication of the Class of 1971. To those who worked and those who pledged, we say a sincere, "Thank you!"

SPRING SPORTS

It was a good year for the Warrior spring sports teams with three of the four establishing winning records. Overall, the four compiled a mark of 23-17-1 to finish above the .500 mark for the second consecutive year.

The best record was turned in by the golfers of Coach Dave Bussey. Fielding what was perhaps his strongest team in a number of years, Bussey saw his Warriors linkmen compile a 9-3 record against primarily Middle Atlantic Conference foes. The three losses were by a total of only five points. The teams team coached by Nels Phillips was 7-3-1 and the track and field squad under the direction of Seth Keller was 5-3.

Only the baseballers of Coach Dutch Burch failed to win more than they lost, finishing with a 2-8 record that included a number of squeakers that could have gone to the Warriors with any kind of breaks.

Even the weather, which often curtails the intercollegiate spring sports programs in the Northeast, cooperated well this year, and, typical of the misfortunes they had on the field, the baseball team was the only squad that had its schedule affected to any great extent.

The Warrior time, after playing the first nine games without a washout, had five of the last six cancelled because of the weather. In contrast, both the tennis and track teams played a complete schedule and the golfers lost only their first match at Western Maryland early in April because of a snowstorm that struck the area the night before the scheduled match.

In the Middle Atlantic Conference championship play, the golfers failed to play up to their regular season form when one of the players became ill just before the tournament and the linksmen finished 16th in a field of twenty-two.

In the MAC tennis championships, Bruce Sale, the Number 1 player on the squad, was eliminated by top-seeded Brian Marsden, of Franklin and Marshall in the first match. The doubles team of Joe Phillips and Dave Mittell met the same fate. They lost to the doubles team of Scott Shannon and Al Levy.

The track team finished 5th out of a field of 16 in the Middle Atlantic Conference championship competition. Don Webb, the versatile senior from Dallastown, was second in the long jump, the best showing by a Warrior in the championship meet.

Webb, who usually competed in seven events in regular season meets, compiled an outstanding individual record for the Warrior trackbuds last spring. He personally accounted for 105 points in the team totals for the year. In addition, he ran on the 440-yard relay team that won six times for thirty points. The 135 points Don rather amassed on individual effort or as part of the relay team accounted for twenty-five percent of the 553 team points made by the Warriors in 1971. Other seniors whose performances will be missed by Coach Keller next year include Doug Brown, Richard Drake, Paul Marsden, Bill Seidm, and Joe Tester.

Few of the other spring sports teams will be hit hard by graduation. Five of the six tennis players who played most of the matches for Coach Phillips will be returning next year, including Sale and Phillips, the Number 1 and Number 2 men in the lineup, who were perhaps the steadiest performers for the Warrior netters. Only Klaus Bendrich, the exchange student from Germany, will not be back.

None of the six regulars on the golf squad are seniors and the team should not be hurt by graduation. However, the baseball squad will miss the hitting of Steve Miller and the hitting of Bill Curley, Doug Hurl, Larry Kunes, and Bob Taber.

We are pleased to offer you the opportunity to travel to beautiful, picturesque Portugal. Your hotel is the Estoril Sol. This is the Portuguese Riviera which boasts 356 days of sunshine each year. Enjoy eight days and seven nights of California-like weather—warm and sunny by day and cool at night.

All this plus one and one-half days of sightseeing, tours, baggage handling, tips, breakfast and dinner, deluxe accommodations, and a smooth DC-8 stretch jet flight for only $329.00 plus 10% tax and service.

If you want more information, please call the alumni office now before reservations are closed. Depart Philadelphia July 24th and return August 1st. We have booked this trip especially for those who are unable to travel in the winter months.
